I am applying for the management committee as I would like to challenge myself, to be part of something greater, to experience the rush of exhilaration as our plans unfold, in the direction we envision, or in ways we have yet foreseen, and the burst of adrenaline as we rush to correct it.

I envision that our club will have yet another roaring year with events new and old, lead by our management committee. However, I believe that it is not the destination, but the journey that reigns supreme. Of all the camps I have attended, even if I barely remember the final night, the days our group spent together will forever be etched into my memory(I'm sure its the same for you too). Similarly, I want to join the management committee as the process of planning for events will always be closer to my heart than merely attending said event.

I am more inclined towards the external marketing committee as I am interested in finance and money management. I feel that our education has a distinct lack of topics related to money management. I am currently engaged in trading and investing in bridging such gaps, and marketing would be the perfect environment to further my understanding of group finances.

In essence: (TL'DR, actual succinct thoughts without the fluff)

- The management committee(MC) is the perfect platform to challenge myself, to place myself outside of my comfort zone.
- The MC provides me with a platform to plan events for the entire school of computing(SoC), to give back to the school.
- The journey of planning such events matters more to me than attending the event. I treasure the process more than the result, while still striving for a resounding success.
- I believe marketing and I will have a symbiotic relationship: I stress over the money management, it provides me valuable experience unable to be obtained elsewhere.
